Not illustrated. 1906 Excerpt: .a new variable z by the relation $z = z - px$, and assigning other associated variables in the form $y = y$, $i = q$, $- = p$, $p = a$. The quantity $p P + q Q$ which occurs in the modified system is obtained from $w(X + pZ) + qQ$, by making the above substitutions; this does not vanish in general, and so the process can be applied to the modified equation: the integral of the original equation can be deduced as before. Note 1. Both in Cauchy s method and in Darboux s modification, an integral has been obtained which has been declared a general integral. Its expression certainly contains an arbitrary function in the least restricted case; but this property is not, of itself, sufficient to secure the character in the customary form. A general integral is given by the elimination of a between the equations $gx, y, z, a, / (a) = 0$, that is, one of the equations is the derivative of the other with regard to the parameter which is to be eliminated. Of course, when the elimination can be actually achieved, this relation between the two equations disappears; usually, however, the expression of the general integral must be left in this form. In particular instances, the result can be verified by bringing the last two equations into an equivalent form which exhibits the relation characteristic of the general integral. Note 2. The general integral that has thus been obtained is the integral...
